MOSCOW, Jan. 21.—The Soviet government is preparing to release West German scientists and their families who have been held captive since the end of World War II. It was the first such group to be released in years, although the German Chancellor, Konrad Adenauer, has been in correspondence with Premier Nikolai Bulganin.

The group includes physicians, a number of rocket specialists who were assigned to the Soviet laboratories at Sibukhnik on the Ural mountains. A total of 120 persons, including adults and children, are involved.

Their repatriation was negotiated by a West German minister, which has been followed by a series of talks with Soviet officials for several weeks on reparation and compensation, and the return of scientific and cultural property.

The group of scientists expected to be freed, however, which came from the Soviet foreign ministry.

Storm Heads Toward East Coastal Area

By United Press

A widespread snowstorm, making in size what it lacked in punch, moved rapidly eastward today and promised to bring snow to the hard-pressed Atlantic states.

Point east of the continental divide escaped the turbulent storm, the Midwest's worst winter weather, which now is in Eastern Kansas and turned highways into death traps with many downpours. As weather-caused delays were tallied around the nation as a result of traffic accidents and grid-locked roads, 100 deaths and four of their children were killed when gas room heaters consumed all the oxygen in their sealed-in compartments, creating carbon monoxide.

Snow continued to pelt the eastern and southern Great Lakes, reaching gale force in some areas, and was moving into the eastern sections of Kansas and Oklahoma. Rains raced ahead of the snow front, threatening the great states to the south, Atlanta.

Heavy snow warnings with accumulations up to four inches were issued for the Midwest today, and the U. S. weather bureau said rains were approaching across the Appalachians to the Atlantic coast.

A movement of moist gulf air exerted a slight warming influence in the east, while temperatures in the New York Adirondacks yesterday. A mixture of rain and sleet in the north added to the driving hazards in the area and turned to light rain later in the day.

Scattered showers and snow flurries continued to fall across the nation as a result of moist Pacific air clinging to the region. Clear skies, however, were forecast for most of the Rockies.

Temperatures dropped in the nation's mid-section as the storm pulled eastward, from the Gulf of the Ohio valley, rainfall totals were close to a half-inch in many places.

Mobile, Ala., in a six-hour period and Jackson, Miss., had more than one-and-a-half inches.

Included in the national death toll were two child-caused fire fatalities in New York state, three weather-blamed traffic deaths in Indiana, and four traffic deaths in Minnesota.

Ministry Is too Easy to Join, Asserts Attorney; Asks More Rigid Standards

By Associated Press
A man can become a clergyman in this country about as easily as he can get a driver's license, the Rev. John J. Keicham said.

"And many do," said Keicham, a Washington, D. C., attorney, who is pressing the churches for joint action to set up some over-all minimum standards to prevent the diaconate from becoming a "joke."

The regular denominations, he said, have extensive requirements for entering their own ministry, but outside their domains, the field is wide open.

"A man who has to do anything, even to give the title and his name, to his business," Keicham said, "almost can buy in almost any size club he wants."

The clerical designation, Keicham said, can provide a man with many advantages, he said.

"So can, if he gets follow- ing contributions; so far as the law generally goes, he can get lower fares on railroads and some airlines and he can get clerical gear and use the privilege of getting into clubs, etc., for establishing a religious organization as not for private gain, invest his collections in real estate, buildings, and other

County Agent Gives Report For 66 Herds

The 66 farmers in Twin Falls county who are keeping official records on their herds for detection are not only members of a locally supervised dairy herd improvement association but their records also are summarized at the state and national levels, according to Warren Daigh, county agent.

Nationally, these records are assembled by the agricultural research service of the department of agriculture, Washington, D. C., under the title of the "National Cooperative Dairy Herd Improvement Program." This agency has a map which lists the areas that have been proven the previous month in several recognized dairy breeds. Daigh said.

According to a recent service news letter, "Years of experience have shown conclusively that strict herd-keeping standards in improved cattle production levels are increased, production efficiency improved, cost of production decreased and returns to the producer increased." This improvement is measured, however, only from the records made by the state on the registered cattle population.

In December, records were kept on 1,373 cows in 45 herds in units under the supervision of 10 farmers. Adam, 10, and 11, were the only two there were 21 herds involving 400 cows under the supervision of Virgil Worcester, making a total of 1,213 cows, 21 units. The average age of the cattle was 4.5 years, and the average weight 1,000 pounds. The total milk production of these cows in both units was a little over 1½ million pounds and the butterfat content of the milk was a little over 10,000 pounds.

Average butterfat production was a little over a pound a day per cow, 21 units. The average butterfat content of the milk was 4.0 percent. The average income was $20 for all of the cows and about $10 for the cows that were milked.

While 530 cows averaged 40 pounds of butterfat, the butterfat there was only six herds above that figure. The high producing herd from the standpoint of average production was the 10th unit, which had the 10th registered and grade Holsteins, all milking, owned by Paul R. Beach, Buhl, that averaged 45.8 pounds.

In second place was a 10-unit registered and grade Holstein with four dry, owned by Irvin Ehlers, Twin Falls, with an average of 43.1. In third place was Simon H. Hahn, 11, with 41.6 of mixed breeds, all milking, 43.2. Twenty-one grade Holsteins owned by Charles Tippett, Buhl, with two dry, average 40.9. The 10th unit, registered and grade, Buhl, had an average yield of 41.2 pounds of fat from eight registered Holsteins, which are dry.

Alvin, 10, had an average of 41.1 from seven cows of mixed breeds, all milking.

Niece Is Victim In Car Accident

HAILEY, Jan. 21—Mrs. Joseph Wurts, 66, died in a car accident on a highway near Hailey, Idaho, yesterday. Her income was probably around $20 for all of the cows and about $10 for the cows that were milked.

While 530 cows averaged 40 pounds of butterfat, the butterfat there was only six herds above that figure. Farm Groups Due to Battle Tax Program

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21 (UPI)—The major farm organizations are preparing to make a final effort in Congress to broaden taxes on incomes of farmer cooperatives.

Recent court rulings have been made that are mainly around tax responsibility of cooperatives for some types of earnings passed on to their patrons. The cooperatives are to begin to lay the ways and means committee of the house in connection with proposed revision of federal tax laws.

Proposed legislation on incomes of cooperatives have been invited to put their proposals before the committee Thursday. A farm committee spokesman said the committee will present their side of the question Monday.

Legislation enacted by Congress in 1962, designed farm officials say, to exempt cooperatives from paying income taxes on earnings or refunds made to members, plus tax on the amount of income that was subject to taxation as income of members and patrons.

Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson said the issue will be decided before the committee last week. He said that under recent court rulings, it is possible for cooperatives to deduct a portion of their tax on incomes of members.

Anderson said "we believe that some single tax liability should be imposed on cooperatives participating in the business activities of the country"
